

Jordan Smith

January 16, 2026

Acme Corporation

RE: Internship Web Developer

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to express my enthusiasm for the Internship Web Developer position at Acme Corporation, which I discovered on your careers page. As a Computer Science student at State University with a focus on web development, I am eager to contribute my skills in a dynamic environment and learn from a team renowned for its innovative approach to technology.

During my recent internship at Tech Solutions, I successfully collaborated with a team of developers to redesign the user interface for a client's e-commerce platform. By implementing responsive design principles, we improved user engagement by 30%, as evidenced by analytics tracking. Additionally, my coursework involved a capstone project where I developed a web application for local businesses to manage their inventory. This project not only honed my skills in HTML, CSS, and JavaScript but also provided me with practical experience in using frameworks such as React and Bootstrap.

I am particularly drawn to Acme Corporation because of your commitment to using technology for social good, and I believe my passion for coding and problem-solving aligns well with your mission. I am excited about the opportunity to bring my background in web development and my proactive approach to learning to your team.

I would love the opportunity to discuss how my background, skills, and enthusiasms can be a match for the Internship Web Developer role at Acme Corporation. Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to the possibility of contributing to your team and learning from your esteemed professionals.

Sincerely,

Jordan Smith