

Emily Johnson

January 16, 2026

Acme Corporation

RE: No Experience Epidemiologist

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to express my enthusiasm for the No Experience Epidemiologist position at Acme Corporation, as advertised on your careers page. With a strong academic background in public health and a keen interest in disease prevention and epidemiology, I am excited about the opportunity to contribute to your team's important work in public health surveillance and research.

During my time at the University of Health Sciences, I completed a capstone project focused on the impact of vaccination rates on community health outcomes. This experience allowed me to analyze data and trends, ultimately presenting findings that highlighted the correlation between increased vaccination coverage and decreased incidence of preventable diseases. In addition, I volunteered with a local health department, where I assisted in data collection and analysis for a study on the effectiveness of community health initiatives. This hands-on experience not only honed my analytical skills but also deepened my understanding of the vital role epidemiologists play in addressing public health challenges.

I am particularly drawn to the innovative approaches Acme Corporation employs to tackle complex epidemiological issues. I am eager to bring my skills in data analysis, research, and community engagement to your team. I am confident that my proactive attitude and dedication to public health will make a positive contribution to your organization's objectives.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss my application further and explore how my background and enthusiasm align with the goals of Acme Corporation. Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to the possibility of contributing to your important work in epidemiology.

Sincerely,

Emily Johnson