

Jessica L. Thompson

January 16, 2026

Acme Corporation

RE: Promotion Ux Researcher

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am excited to apply for the Promotion UX Researcher position at Acme Corporation, which I discovered on your careers page. With my strong background in user experience research and a passion for enhancing product usability, I am eager to contribute to your team and help shape innovative marketing strategies that resonate with users.

In my previous role at TechInnovate, I successfully led a comprehensive user research study aimed at optimizing our promotional campaigns. By employing a combination of qualitative and quantitative methods, I gathered actionable insights that resulted in a 25% increase in user engagement for our product launches. Additionally, I developed a series of user personas based on extensive user interviews, which informed our marketing team's strategies and significantly improved our targeting efforts, leading to a 15% increase in conversion rates.

Furthermore, I collaborated closely with cross-functional teams to conduct usability testing on promotional content, identifying key areas for improvement that enhanced user satisfaction and retention. My ability to synthesize user feedback into clear, strategic recommendations has been instrumental in driving product enhancements and ensuring alignment with user needs. I am confident that my skills in user research and data analysis will allow me to effectively contribute to the innovative projects at Acme Corporation.

I look forward to the opportunity to discuss how my experience and passion for user-centered design can contribute to the continued success of Acme Corporation. Thank you for considering my application; I hope to speak with you soon.

Sincerely,

Jessica L. Thompson